INTRODUCTION

● Number 24 of LASALLIANA, which you now have in your hands, is the second issue of 1992. We are pleased to be able to point out that the number of subscriptions to our publication has increased, and we are particularly glad that the number of those sending in articles has grown. Of course this is a great satisfaction to us for it shows that our publication is proving helpful in communities and other centres.

● What we produce in LASALLIANA is, as usual, available to all members of the Lasallian Family, so that we can have the kind of collaboration needed to achieve the aims of our publication, which are to spread awareness of Lasallian issues of whatever nature, and to help our readers to gain a greater understanding of them. Any material on the life, spirituality and work of St. de La Salle is welcome to these pages, as well as reflexions on real life situations, our mission, ministry, lasallian educational themes, actual teaching, the apostolate, pastoral work in schools, vocations and formation, community life, news of the institute, experiences and witness of individuals.

● It is precisely because the reading matter of LASALLIANA is so varied that it should not be limited in readership to the Brothers' communities. It should be available to the whole Lasallian Family, and especially to the teachers who share the Brothers' apostolate in Lasallian institutions. We should also like to invite the Brothers to share the actual spiritual and educational experiences which we are trying to express in these pages.

● Our next issue, number 25, will be a milestone in the short history of LASALLIANA. We intend printing an index, by subject matter and author, of all the articles so far published. We hope that this index will prove a useful reference to our first 500 articles.

● Quite a number of Institute publications reproduce individual articles taken from LASALLIANA. We are quite honoured to see our work thus appreciated, however, we would be very grateful, when you do this, if you mentioned the name of the author and the name of the publication the article is taken from; please also indicate the reference number of the article you reproduce.
